Triple play (telecommunications)

For telephone local exchange carriers (LECs), triple play is typically delivered using a combination of optical fiber and digital subscriber line (DSL) technologies, often referred to as fiber in the loop. In this arrangement, fiber is used to cover longer distances, while DSL is deployed over existing POTS twisted pair cables to provide last mile access to subscribers. Cable television operators use a similar architecture, known as hybrid fibre-coaxial (HFC), which employs coaxial cable rather than twisted pair f
